

TISCALI JOINS THE PROJECT 2010: FIBRE FOR ITALY

Cagliari, June 4, 2010 - Tiscali, a leading telecommunications company in Italy, joined the project "2010: Fiber for Italy", presented recently by Fastweb, Vodafone and Wind, with the aim of providing Italy with a single next generation optical fibre network infrastructure. Tiscali joins the three operators promoting the project, in asking the Government and the Institutions to start the process for creating company to manage the fibre-optic network with the contribution of all telecom operators and Authorities.

Participating in the development of the project for the creation of a next generation network (NGN), Tiscali also takes part in the trial for the Rome district of Collina Fleming that will start shortly.

Renato Soru, President and CEO of Tiscali, said: "I see in the project 2010 Fibre for Italy a real operating need, that can no longer be ignored, to provide Italy with those facilities that other European countries are rapidly adopting. Broadband is the heart of a modern and civilized country. The decisions we will take about this project, will definitely shape the Italy of tomorrow. This is the reason why Tiscali will work closely with the other alternative operators offering the best we can from our resources".
